How About Some CHEESE, Please?

While working today, the boss and I were doing up cheese trays for the holiday. She asked my opinion on the festivity of her Some of them were appropriate; however, there were a few of the most attrocious looking things I have ever seen. They kind of reminded me of some of the place settings of One had a pea green, brown, and funky looking orange scheme. It might have been ok with a more decorative All the trays were covered with alluminum foil scene on it. so the scheme was effectively hidden. Diane also informed me that most of the trays had been left over from the previous Apparently, they did not like them either. Hard to believe that it took 8-9 years to find them. They were hidden I can't wait to see the trays she plans to use really well. for Christmas cheese trays. One good thing came of this: I got to sample some hot pepper cheese (YUUUUUMMMY!)