

Space, the Final Frontier...

Just a quick post before work to let you all know of something I just read in the paper. You can actually go up on one of NASA's final two shuttle missions. Well, your image can anyway. NASA has set up a page where you can upload your photo which will be sent up in one of the shuttles- you can even select which one! You will even get a certificate for it after the flight, though I think you have to print it out yourself. Anyway, here is the URL:

<https://faceinspace.nasa.gov/>