

Offline for a couple of days

I was offline all of yesterday due to a cable problem. I have located the problem- it seems the outside cable is worn through in a spot. I have jury-rigged it to test it for now, and as you can see since I am writing a post that it is indeed the problem. Unfortunately I can't keep it up. Obviously they have a record that I am accessing the internet now, but I can always tell the tech I was just testing the problem myself, and I was. I will have to remove what I did though. Unfortunately it means no internet for me for two more days since my appointment isn't until Wednesday afternoon. ☐

Hopefully I can get sub jobs for the next couple of days using the phone instead. Of course that means no blogs until then either...