

One day closer!

Well, another day closer to our anniversary! Today we had Phillip's graduation party and we also headed towards Toledo again! We went to Fallen Timbers shopping center and looked at the book store and the game store. I found plenty of books, but of course, they were more than I was willing to spend the moment. Once we got to Emmy's, I got into the pool, but with as many kids as there was in the pool, I didn't stay in very long. I couldn't really swim at all! We left again to get away from the people that were filling Emmy's house and went to Best Buy to check up on Tony's application. Then we went to another book store! Has any one guessed that I love book stores?