

Season Premiere

Tonight is the season premiere of CSI: New York. There is about half an hour left before it starts and I am dreading and anticipating it at the same time. Last season they ended it with a shot ringing out during a black screen! Who was shot and was baby Lucy all right are the top questions I need answered and I know that with this episode, my questions will be answered, but with this episode, I will see how my favorite character, Stella, is being written out of the show. She decided she didn't want to do another season, to be able to spend more time with her family. I get all of that, but she was my favorite character and I don't want her to leave the show! The person they have coming in to be her replacement I don't really know. I have only seen her in the Fugitive and that was for about five minutes, because she was the wife who was killed.

Of course, she isn't going to be Stella. They have come up with a new character, but being second in command to Mac? No one will do the job as well as Stella. She was Mac's best friend, his trusted co-worker, his confident. And now she is going to be gone! Who is Mac going to be able to turn to now? I think it will be either Flack or Danny, most likely Flack. I will watch the show, but not until Tony gets home. I am going to record it and then once Tony gets home, we'll watch it together. I hope it's still good without Stella!
